WALTER

SYNOPSIS

Walter believes himself to be the son of God. As such, it is his responsibility to judge whether people will spend eternity in heaven or hell. That's a lot to manage along with his job as a ticket-tearer at a movie theater, his loving but neurotic mother, and his growing but unspoken affection for his co-worker Kendall. When one day Greg, a ghost stuck in purgatory, interrupts Walter's daily routine, asking him for his judgement, everything comes to a halt. Greg and his shrink, Dr. Corman, help Walter to reassess the meaning of life, which may include finding a way to win over Kendall's heart....

THE DIRECTOR

Anna Mastro is an American filmmaker, music video director and television producer. A native of Seattle, Washington, Mastro graduated from the University of Washington at the age of nineteen. She became a protegee to director McG, working as his assistant on the Wonderland Sound and Vision productions Fastlane, Charlie's Angels: Full Throttle and The O.C. As a television producer, she worked on the reality series The Pussycat Dolls Present: The Search for the Next Doll and Pussycat Dolls Present: Girlicious. As a music video director, she directed videos for the artists Train, Leona Lewis, Alex Band, Carbon Leaf, Kristen Kelly, Victoria Justice and The Pussycat Dolls. In 2008, she directed the short film MATTER starring Amanda Righetti. In 2011, she directed the short film BENCH SEAT starring Cassie Scerbo and written by Neil LaBute. The film earned a Short Grand Prix nomination at the Warsaw International Film Festival. In 2012, she directed the Gossip Girl episode „Save The Last Chance“, one of the final four episodes of the series.
